I. READING COMPREHENSION

① It was a normal evening in February 2014 when Tim and Kerry Meek experienced what felt like a seismic event. It didn't shake anyone else's world, but it certainly changed their life forever. As the couple settled into bed in Nottingham, after a day of hard work at their teaching jobs, Tim switched off the bedroom light, and a light bulb in his mind switched on. "How about swapping work and school for a year of an exciting undertaking?" Tim wondered. The idea led to them making a radical decision: quitting jobs, removing their daughters, Amy and Ella from school, and hitting the road.

"At the time, we felt trapped in a rut, working too hard and not spending enough time together as a family," Tim revealed. "I was actually struggling with mild depression and Kerry felt she was constantly drowning in a sea of pupil-performance spreadsheets. Amy and Ella were relatively happy at school, but the increasing test-focused system was dampening their spirits. We were all ready for a change. Kerry and I were excited about the adventure, but nervous about how the girls might react. The suggestion shocked them initially, but as the idea sank in, they endorsed it," Tim added.

The family started their journey, road-schooling in a caravan. Driven by educational aims, they visited various areas in the UK and ventured into unknown corners. They decoupled from the national curriculum, developing a more flexible student-led model. "We've often been asked how we can afford to live like this. Our answer is 'We can't'. We simply sold our house and invested money in our most precious assets, our children. They now see challenges as an important part of life and value their ability to persevere when the going gets tough."
